White House Reveals Terms Of Agreement

WASHINGTON, March 3 (P)-The White House today announced an agreement under which Vice President Nixon would become acting president if President Eisenhower should become unable to serve.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty described it as more or less the copy of an understanding Eisenhower and Nixon have had. Eisenhower mentioned an understanding at his news conference last Wednesday; he refused then to say exactly what was in it.

Today, Hagerty issued the following statement:

"The President and the vice president have agreed that the following procedures are in accord with the purposes and provisions of Article Two, Section One, of the Constitution, dealing with presidential inability. They bebelieve that these procedures, which are intended to apply to themselves only, are in no sense outside or contrary to the Constitution but are consistent with its present provisions and implement its clear intent.

Mrs. Richard W. Miller could hardly believe beard of her 19-year-old brother, Richard Chappell, was real as he arrived on Concord, Mass., yesterday after a year in the Antarctic. Maryland's New Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Law

The purpose of this law is to put an end to the present situation in which a person, through no fault of his own, may suffer severe economic loss in a traffic accident that is caused by an uninsured motorist who cannot pay for the damage he or she causes. It will accomplish this purpose by paying the innocent victim's damages out of an Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund that will be in the custody of the State Treasurer and administered by an Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Board.

This law will not begin to cover such accidents until June 1, 1959. But don't let that cause you to lose interest. The law will begin to affect motor vehicle owners as they make application for their 1958 license tags.

When you file your new registration application blank for 1958, you must answer some very important questions about whether or not you carry Automobile Liability Insurance. Be sure to answer them accurately and completely; and should you now have a policy that is terminated after registration, notify the Commissioner at once and pay the additional fee for uninsured owners to avoid the penalties of falsification.

The owners of vehicles who carry Automobile Liability Insurance (proof of which is not required) will pay $1 in addition to their regular registration fee and vehicle owners who do not have Automobile Liability Insurance will pay $8 in addition to their regular registration fee. These additional fees, together with an assessment against the insurance companies of 1/2 of 1% of their Maryland automobile premiums will be deposited in the Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund.

At the end of each succeeding year, the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles must determine whether there remains on deposit sufficient money to meet probable claims during the next subsequent year. If not, he must call on uninsured owners and the insurance companies to pay an additional fee in each succeeding year that a deficiency remains. The law does not provide for any additional fees to be paid by motor vehicle owners who have Automobile Liability Insurance.

Some owners might think they will no longer need Automobile Liability Insurance on the theory that the Fund will take care of their victims. But, it will be more important than ever to continue your insurance if you have it, or to acquire it if you do not. The Fund will pay the damages of your innocent victim, but that will cost you both your driving license and registration plates for all cars owned by you. They cannot be restored, nor new ones issued, until you have reimbursed the Fund in full, plus 4 percent interest per annum, and until you have furnished proof of future financial responsibility in the amount of $25,000 through insurance or the deposit of collateral. So don't make the mistake of thinking this law makes insurance less important; it makes insurance more important.

The Maryland UCJF Law affords protection to all residents of Maryland except motor vehicle owners who do not carry Automobile Liability Insurance. It provides protection against economic loss up to $10,000 for death or injury of one person, $20,000 for death or injury of more than one person in any one accident, and $5,000 for property damage. From whatever such award you receive, $100 will be deducted. Damages of $100 or less

In writing a law that will give innocent victims the most complete protection possible, the General Assembly also sought to make it as economical as possible without jeopardizing the primary purpose of just indemnification. Since damages of $100 or less could ordinarily be sustained without hardship, the deductible was written into the law to avoid excessive administration expense

How will you go about filing a claim in an accident on and after June 1, 1959? There are several things you should decide first. If you, as the owner of a motor vehicle, do not carry Automobile Liability Insurance, it is useless to file a claim because the UCJF Law affords you no protection, unless you were a pedestrian at the time of the accident. Also, if you were at fault, regardless of whether or not you carry insurance, this law again affords you no ground for indemnification through the Fund.

If, however, as a pedestrian, the insured operator or occupant of an insured motor vehicle, you are involved in an accident through no fault of your own, and you have found that the negligent operator or owner is uninsured and otherwise financially irresponsible, within 90 days after the accident file your claim with the Unsatsfied Claim and Judgment Board, 33 Hopkins Place, Baltimore 1. Maryland. The Board, upon receiving satisfactory proof that you were not at fault, may direct the payment of claims for less than $1.000 without reference to a court.

If the claim is for $1,000 or more, you should apply to a court for judgment against the owner of the motor vehicle that caused the accident or for approval of a settlement you may prefer to make with such owner. If the court finds you to be the innocent victim and is satisfied that the guilty motor vehicle owner has no financial means of paying the claim himself, it will direct the State Treasurer to reimburse you for your damages up to the limits heretofore explained.

Along with your registration application, you will have received an official leaflet issued by the State of Maryland. It contains just about all of the information you will need to know about our UCJF Law. Read it and preserve it. It may save you from losing your driving license and registration plates, not to mention considerable additional expense.

Insured Owners

You are not required to show evidence of insurance in applying for your tags. Your additional fee of $1.00 is collected this year only. It will help build the Fund for your protection against injury and damage caused in Maryland by hit and run drivers, stolen cars, and uninsured motorists from other states as well as Maryland.

If you now have a family auto policy with any of the agents listed below, you need not wait until June 1, 1959, for protection against the uninsured driver. By a new endorsement at modest cost, coverage against injury to you, your family and guest occupants of your car may be added at once for a small additional premium.

Some Issues For The Summit

There is an assumption in Washington and most of the world's capitals that a summit conference involving Russian and U.S. heads of state will be held. This assumption could be erroneous, of course.

Recently Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain said he favored such a conference. But he added that he was more concerned that the meeting be "successful" than that it be held.

Merely to hold a meeting as "window dressing" for an accord that is false would be a mistake. The only reason for meeting is to accomplish something-and the chances must be good before agreeing to meet. In this respect, it is worth noting problems that will be either officially or unofficially on the agenda of any summit Russia proposes an immediate end to tests of nuclear bombs. The U.S. insists this would be ineffective without a ban on manufacture of such weapons and adequate inspection.

That about sums it up, except for the gimmick—which is that if the U.S. were to be so foolish as to agree to all Moscow's proposals, the Reds would change them overnight.

Schwartz On Committees

Dr. Bernard Schwartz's name and photograph were hurled at the American people without introduction. To some, he appeared to be a bull in the china shop, upsetting the even course of Congressional affairs, but what seemed much worse, disclosing the tendency of public officials and Washington lawyers and politicians to find corrupt means to do their business. He really gave the boys a scare.

However, Dr. Schwartz is not only a learned but an obstinate personality, and although his Congressional committee dismissed him without much ado, he managed, by dramatic gestures, to keep his cause before the public and to force the House committee that fired him to continue the investigation, with him as a sworn witness. The committee immediately drew pay dirt.

To read a man's book is to know much about him. Dr. Schwartz has written a book, "The Supreme Court," published by The Ronald Press Company, in which he discusses the role of the investigative committees of Congress. Dr. Schwartz wrote this before some of the late 1957 decisions of the Supreme Court which have, in some measure, damaged the effective weapons of both the Congressional investigative committee and the FBI.

Dr. Schwartz's statement of the case is interesting and important in view of his experience with his committee. In his book, he says:

'This is not to deny the importance of the Congressional power of investigation; the indispensable informing function of Congress, in the words of a 1953 Supreme Court opinion, is not to be minimized. Certainly, the power of inquiry is an essential auxiliary to the legislative functions of the Congress. As the Court itself recognized in the leading case upholding Congressional investigatory authority (its 1927 decision in McGrain v. Daugherty), 'A legislative body cannot legislate wisely or effectively in the absence of information respecting the conditions which the legislation is intended to affect or change; and where the legislative body does not itself possess the requisite information - which not infrequently is true - recourse must be had to others who do possess it.'

It is by use of its investigatory power that the Congress obtains the information needed to enable it properly to perform its functions. It is, indeed, not too much to say that, under contemporary conditions, investigating committees have become, in large part, the eyes and ears of the Congress .

Literally, Congress could not function without the investigative committees. Even more, this country would soon become a bureaucratic oligarchy were it not that every once in a while, a committee of Congress uncovers crookedness, subversion, abuse of the law, corrupt practices, improper relationships on the part of public officials. In fact, one of the problems of all governments is to find a means for protecting the people and the government from corrupt and indecent practices, from waste and profligacy, from illegal assumption of power, even from treason.

Dr. Schwartz apparently did not approve of Senator Joe McCarthy; yet he says:

"It is significant that, despite claimed abuses by the House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Activities, Senator McCarthy, and others of their ilk, the Supreme Court has not found any exercise of Congressional investigatory authority to exceed the constitutional limits upon legislative power

Perhaps had he had a chairman like Joe Mc-Carthy, who would have backed him to the hilt, no matter where he discovered wrong-doing, he would have had an opportunity to complete an investigation he had started and in which his claims are showing up to be correct. Roy Cohn had better luck with his chairman.

Dr. Schwartz's conclusion is:

The fact that it (investigative authority) may be abused does not, however, bear on the existence and scope of investigatory power, for the same is true of the law-making power of the Congress and, indeed, of all governmental power. And, more pertinent for our present purposes, it does not justify the courts in setting themselves up as censors of what is, after all, the internal functioning of a coordinate branch of government. We would not be understood . . .' stated the Supreme Court in 1950, 'as expressing either approval or disapproval of those practices (of Congressional committees). But the remedy, if any is needed, is certainly not to destroy the effective operation of all committees, which is the necessary result if they cannot compel the disclosure of facts.' This would seem to be very sound constitutional

Alert Senators Plug Tax Loophole Benefiting Life Insurance Firms

WASHINGTON - Four alert Senators managed to block a loophole in the tax laws last week that meant other taxpayers would pay about a quarter of a billion dollars extra. The four Senators are Clint Anderson of New Mexico, Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, Albert Gore of Tennessee, all Democrats; with John Williams of Delaware, Republican.

The loophole they moved to plug affected the big life insurance companies which have been coining money by the millions but in some years have paid absolutely no taxes.

Senator Anderson, who runs an insurance company of his own in Albuquerque, N. Mex., was the first to spot the loophole. It came to the Senate in the form of a hastily passed bill, rushed through the House of Representatives by Rep. Wilbur Mills, Arkansas Democrat. Laws are considered so hastily in the House that not one vote was cast against this giveaway-though it would cost the taxpayers exactly $224,-

"I would like to know why the insurance companies need this?" asked Senator Gore in a closeddoor session of the Senate Finance Committee, after Anderson had spotted the House tax bonanza. "Whom does it help? And how badly do they need it?"

Anderson, whose company would have profited from the passage of the concession to insurance companies, explained that ever since 1942, the Treasury

Sun Worshippers

By Bob Considine

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., March 3-(INS)-The sun is here. (End of Flash.) The sun is here and you can have it. People peel off their clothes and sit in its villainous rays, occasionally basting themselves with one or more of the assorted grease gravies the drug stores and beauty shoppes sell. They'd look better with an apple in their mouths, and a little parsley around the

A tan is something the sunworshipper wears like the Congressional Medal of Honor. This winter there has been intense dismay in their ranks because the sun forgot Florida and a few other of its known haunts. The recession, as it is politely called, has put a crimp in Palm Springs, too. But this has not kept away the complete devotee any more than a lock on a whisky closet could stop a man in need of a drink. Some use reflectors under their chins, to tan their wattles.

The worshippers congregate mainly around the countless swimming pools of this pleasant community, often in deck chairs, their faces lifted skyward with a reverence usually reserved for the figures on stained glass windows. When they speak, they are inclined to mumble, "Came down to get a little sun." But mostly they're mute, these dedicated ones, as they lie there or turn slowly like something on a spit.

They take their tan back to the frozen world like a person bringing home the Golden Fleece. If they went to Florida this year, and timed it wrong, they will be ferced to use a lot of suntan powder upon their return, to prove to the office that the whole thing was not in vain. The wearer of an authentic tan, however, lives like solvent royalty - once home -and actually is pretty hard to get along with until the thing wears off. If it's sun you want, this is as nice a place to be burned as one could find. There's an ease in the manner of Palm Springs. The people, when clothed, tend towards the styles of the Old West, and wear them with the pleasure that little children derive from cowboy-cowgirl outfits. It is like being a part of a big informal party, but if the sun doesn't shine it is regarded pretty much as Rome viewed its Fire and London its Plague.

As we were saying, it's here and you can have it. Makes mereel and stagger.

A five-year-old unmarried girl we know named Cynthia Hopps brought her spinster 2-year-old sister Melissa to see us early this morning.

'We are going to fly in an airplane to California today," Cynthia announced.

"But you're already in California," we suggested.

"We are flying in an airplane to the real California," she said, patiently. "The California that's

A lower-level flight from Los Angeles to Palm Springs is a great experience. Pilot Rudy Murad nonchalantly lifted the Aero Commander off the long jet strip at Howard Hughes's super-secret plant and spun away over the city, pointing out the awesome concrete crater that will be the temporary home of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and then the green ravine where the team will build its own stadium.

In a few minutes we were looking down on Santa Anita, and the cars in its colossal parking lot were like brightly colored tiles, covering a huge expanse of roof. We drummed over fecund orange groves, while a snow storm raged among the mountain peaks to Murad and a co-pilot named Bill Gerarst took us low through the pass that separates the fertile from the reverse. And as abrupt as a child's crayon drawing there was desert, the endless ocean of rough sand, peppered with mesquite. It was easy finding an oasis amid such desolation. The oasis is Palm Springs. Is there a relationship between automobile accidents and typhoid fever? No, except that we may be able to reduce the slaughter on the highways by using the same tactics that were successful against typhoid.

Physicians are not safety engineers but they see the end results of the traffic toll and are concerned about the prevention and treatment of conditions that maim, incapacitate, and kill. At present, accidents take more lives between the ages of 15 and 24 than does disease; they are the second leading cause of death

Kuharich Gets Five-Year Pact From Redskins

Washington Owner Sets Precedent

WASHINGTON, March 3 (A) George Preston Marshall, mellowing owner of the Washington Redcins, cast aside precedent today by handing Coach Joe Kuharich a brand new five-year contract.

Marshall and Kuharich burned up a three-year agreement which had another season to go and signed a new one which for length rivals any ever concluded in pro football and certainly exceeds any in Redskin annals.

Neither would mention salary, but it was generally assumed the 40-year-old Kuharich got an increase. He is reported to have been drawing about $17,500 a year. Since setting up their wigwam here in 1937, the Redskins have taken on nine different coaches for the heaviest turnover in the National Football League.

Creating an atmosphere of one big happy family, Marshall announced that Kuharich's assistants would be offered three-year contracts. This also is an uncommonly long term. Kuharich's aides, expected to accept, are Mike Nixon, Dick Evans and Joe Tereshinski.

Kuharich joined the Redskins as an assistant to Curley Lambeau in 1954. Within 33 days he was head coach. The Redskins had lost two straight exhibitions, and Marshall severed relations heatedly with Lambeau in a Sacramento. Calif., hotel lobby scene.

Washington won only three of 12 that year, but Kuharich established himself by guiding the 'Skins to an 8-4 record and second place in the NFL's Eastern Conference in 1955. Altogether his teams have won 22, lost 25 and tied one. "Winning is terribly important,"

Marshall said today, "but he has produced what in my estimation is more important—teams that have been interesting to watch and accepted by the public. "There have been other coaches with much finer records but much duller teams." Kuharich, a guard at Notre Dame, coached the University of San Francisco to an undefeated season in 1951. Earlier, in the pro game, he had played for the Chicago Cards and coached the Pitts burgh Steelers' line. He was head Canadian Gridders coach of the Cards in 1952.

House, Senate Begin Struggle With Tax Plans

The Issue: Where To Get The Money

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS, March 3 (P) House and Senate finance groups began working on a tax program tonight with an apparent wide difference of opinion on how best to raise the nearly 33 million dollars

A majority of senators polled by newsmen favored taking it all out of the income tax-by raising the rate of 3 per cent and lowering personal exemptions from the present $800 to $600 per person.

An equally large number of delegates preferred tapping both the income and sales tax for new revenue rather than putting all the burden on one of the two major

They were polled individually before going into a joint conference for exploratory talks on the problem of how best to balance the budget. They have only three days left to formulate and enact a tax program but are expected to reach no quick decision.

The choice of escaping with only one tax increase arose after committees cut 71/2 million dollars from Gov. McKeldin's general fund budget. This left them needing to raise only $32,870,916 compared to the more than 40 million dollar deficit left with them by Gov. McKeldin. He proposed 50 per cent increases in both the sales and income taxes.

Maybe Only One Increase

Senators quickly foresaw a possibility of doing it all within the framework of one tax after approving cuts in his budget. By boosting the income tax rate from its present 2 per cent to a 3 per cent rate as recommended by the governor they would raise an estimated $25,249,000 next fiscal year.

They could pick up $13,000,000 more by lowering exemptions for dependents from $800 to $600. This would be around 6 million dollars more than they need to raise but the exemption figure or tax rate could be tailored to fit exactly if the senators wished.

Twelve members of the 15-member Senate Finance Committee were contacted for their views, and six favored working it out with the income tax alone. Three others favored a combination of sales and income tax increases or adjustments, with the income tax carrying most of the burden. Two others had made no decision. Author Will Chairman Turnbull (D-Balto County) said he would favor taking everything out of one tax, although he wouldn't specify sales
